“Fire Dynamics, Smoke & the Ventilation Profile”

Scott Stilborn

Being able to read the profile of a fire is critical to situational awareness, risk assessments and decision-making. A firefighter's knowledge and skills, not guesswork or good luck, marks them as a professional. This lecture will review modern fire dynamics, identify the visual cues that can assist in determining the stage of fire, and predict the changes that are likely to occur. These skills are essential in ensuring the correct selection of firefighting strategies and tactics in the control and suppression of fires.

Safety Officer Peter McBride Ottawa (Canada) Fire Services

Peter McBride is an incident safety officer with the Ottawa (Canada) Fire Services. He has extensive operational knowledge of the incident safety officer position and is a co-developer of the incident safety officer and building construction courses used by the province of Ontario for its Company Officer Program. McBride recently sat on the Project Technical Panel evaluating tactics for wind driven fires and on the NFPA 1521 Task Group. He has also contributed to NFPA 1500 and 1584. McBride is a researcher and patent holder whose passion for sharing ideas and seeking insights from others has been responsible for initiating many innovative partnerships.
